

BIO

Angelia “Angie” Cartwright

Angie is energetic, driven, ambitious, and curious. She is noted for her innate ability to inspire and encourage others.

Angie grew up in the mountains of Colorado and currently resides in Austin, Texas. She enjoys endless days of sunshine, an eclectic lifestyle, food, fitness and music.

Angie’s curiosity has drawn her to live outside of the U.S. on 2 continents and in 3 countries for nearly a decade. She has visited an additional 25 countries and considers travel one of her passions.

Currently, Angie is the owner of Potentiality Coaching & Consulting. Angie thrives in helping companies improve, maximize, and continuously improve the functioning of individuals, teams, as well as the total organization. Her industry experience includes government, retail, healthcare, non-profit, real-estate, technology and telecom. Recently, Angie was invited to be a guest presenter at the HR Summit for Wilson Sporting Goods Co.

Previous, Angie held several roles at British Telecom in London, England. The special projects she helped design and implement include: London 2012 Olympic L&D business plan, BT Centre for Major Programme Management at University of Oxford, professional communities, curriculum framework, graduate leadership, and a company-wide mentoring & coaching program.

Additionally, Angie has been a business partner and also provided support to various start-ups in the health and technology arena. Her career achievements are listed on her resume.

Angie’s education and training includes a Master of Science degree in HR and a Bachelor of Science in Marketing. Angie holds certifications in: Professional in Human Resources and coaching. Additionally, she is a trained 360° facilitator, as well as a MBTI® practitioner.

Angie’s professional affiliations include: Society for Human Resource Management, Austin Human Resources Management Association; Mentoring Committee, Colorado Human Resources Management Association; Program Development Chair, Complex Adaptive Leadership; Associate Global Partner and American Society for Training and Development.

Not only is Angie a gifted coach, but her “undying dedication, enthusiasm and thirst for knowledge” and helping others meet their potential is impeccable. When Angie is not consulting or coaching, she’s usually reading, volunteering, or working out. Her fitness routine includes cycling, jogging, swimming, and yoga. Additionally, she loves spending time with her family and close friends.

To learn more about Angie, please visit:
LinkedIn Website Twitter Accolades